

New Yorkers Strong for Cox Ticket

But Much Confused by Candidates Names---No Wilsonite Is Popular

NEW YORK, July 16.—This big town has been overheard by its neighbors. The news is no getting around the fact. His selection as the Democratic standard bearer has the widest popular approval among the subway straphangers and taxi riders, who constitute the general electorate.

There is also a genuine satisfaction over the revival of the partnership of Ohio and New York as exemplified by the marriage of Governor Cox's daughter to the son of the late Mayor La Guardia.

The all star "fare at the extreme end of the road" has been broken up. The club had received the news of Gov. Cox's nomination with divided equanimity. Speculation was popping upon the voting strength of the party in the state legislature, the house of matrimony through the window of divorce. "The divorce vote is not to be sneezed at," insisted Walter J. Kinsley, of the city hall. "It will be split more or less equally divided bet-ned in the ticket, Cox and Roosevelt. The last time these States were a political firm was when McKinley and the other Roosevelt won the country.

It is being repeatedly said that the presence of a member of the Roosevelt family on the Democratic ticket will mean thousands of pro-between the sexes."

"Will a grass widow vote for a man who has been a grass widow?" reflected Winfield R. Sheehan, the newly elected vice president of the Fox Film forces. "Won't she be inclined to use surge as a verb?"

It means to release the revenge that they have stored in their nature!"

The figures and facts with regard to the extent of divorce in the United States are as follows: In the past 10 years is that 340,225 separations are granted to husbands and 676,178 to wives, showing that chivalry probably still exists in the United States. Out of the divorces granted, 25 per cent with the males, two out of three men as like as not being the cause of the bulk of the country's vote here.

Regard Harding as Damp. There seems to be a prevailing impression in the restaurants and clubs of Cuba that the reason for the prohibition question the real Harding is "moderately damp" and the real Cox is "drizzling wet." The argument is that the United States justifies such an assumption, but it is next to impossible to eradicate a total of 1,016,407 couples parted by law or the equivalent of 2,032,814 individuals. It is estimated that 100,000 have been cut down by death—at least 25 per cent of the separated of two classes. However, the entire population of Cuba is 1,200,000. Twenty years ago was 9,129,269 and his plurality was but 581,941. Enough people to populate either Cuba or Another odd thing is the tangling up of the identities of the candidates. Gov. Cox is being passed off as the same person as the late George Cox, the Republican boss of Cincinnati, who made large investments in the theatrical district here. "I've explained that there was no relarelationship between the men from Chicago and the men from the other countries, not only the closed country, but the open countries. The contractors for the various governments and United States Senators, and the various law firms, and the expenditures by the managers for Wood, Lowden and the other candidates for President, was but a small part of the money that was a real outlay," he said. "I should say that $200,000,000 is a very low estimate."

Mr. Harding, the banker, is a hard-shell Democrat and came north from Birmingham, Ala., while the Hon. Hiram Bingham was still a newspaper owner.

Nothing has hurt Gov. Cox so much as the letter from President Wilson, whose unpopularity still holds with the man in the street.

He called attention to the general feeling throughout the country for Republican nomination with equivalent of the Harding nomination caused as many as ten or more candidates running for one nomination in the primaries. His conclusion:

"It has cost a lot of money, funds that the people want into the keeping of Bullies."

"If Wilson is for Cox, I'm for Harding. Unless Cox openly repudiates the party, I will vote for a republican ticket for the first time."

Frank A. Acer, the lawyer who probably had the largest number of clients ever taking their troubles to one office, tells me that one of the youngest juniors, while riding this bus, said to Joseph Henry Collins Brown, an author with the most insouciant mind, "I have uncovered some new and curiously interesting facts about New York. I have discovered that the city loses five every fifty-two seconds; there Tumulty, secretary to the President. Mr. Acer had exactly 110,000 clients, and he was paid $1 a year plus for whatever legal assistance each might need. "I was in the money," he said. "I legislated out of business," said Mr. Acer, "by a bill sneaked through the legislature which prohibited a corporation from owning more than 100 white with this concern

PRIDE.
They call me vain. Perchance I be.
Why not, since God hath fashioned me thus?—I stand as others do.
What e'er my faults right here I
